This Is Clothes-Buying Time for Thousands—Probably for You

"I want what I want when I want it," say most men and their When usually means Now.

There are no seasons for buying clothing any more. The season for you is when you need it—whether it is early fall, late fall, mid-winter or when.

So many men, foolishly, go shabbily dressed for weeks waiting for the weather. But to what purpose? There are advantages to those who buy early, or late, in mid-season and out of season but these advantages are equalized. If you buy early, however, you are in the forefront of fashion for a longer period of wearing time, and so we say, BUY NOW.

The weather may keep you guessing—it certainly has this week—but never our suits. They are always the same as far as style and quality go. Some great ones at $17.50, $22.50 and $25. Men's and Young Men's styles.

Top off with one of our new $2 soft hats.

Particular men never experiment about shoes. As fast as one pair wears out, back they come to Meigs & Co. for another.

EPOCHAL ACHIEVEMENTS FOR LABOR HAVE BEEN MADE BY DEMOCRATIC ADMINISTRATION

Hand-Worker's Zone of Opportunity Broadened and Improvements of Conditions Affected, Says Secretary of Labor Wilson—Points to Great Remedial Legislation That Has Been Adopted.

(By WILLIAM B. WILSON, Secretary of Labor.)

Democratic control of Congress and the sympathetic leadership of Woodrow Wilson have made effective epochal achievements which constitute a practically completed program of economic justice for laboring classes.

Great laws affecting terms and conditions of employment have been rewritten to accord with the highest dictates of modern conscience and experience. Administrative measures have been adopted which expand the hand-worker's zone of opportunity and tend to improve the conditions under which he labors and man and woman work and live.

Labor's new Bill of Rights is safe—Labor's entire cause is safe—under Woodrow Wilson. But suppose a change takes place to another and an entirely different sort of federal administration, placing the enforcement of the new laws and the conduct of labor's new administrative machinery in the hands of a party which has fought practically every one of the advances made in labor's behalf? What then?

Essential chapters in the story of the redemption of Democratic pledges to Labor are:

1. Creation of the Department of Labor.

2. Amendment of the anti-trust laws relative to organizations of labor and farmers on the principle that the labor of a human being is not a commodity or article of commerce.

3. The prevention of the abuse of the right of injunction in labor disputes by our federal courts.

4. Restricting punishment for alleged contempt of court and providing a trial by jury in all cases of contempt when the alleged act has not occurred within the immediate presence of the court.

5. Specifically defining the things that labor may do in furtherance of a labor dispute.

6. Prohibiting of funds appropriated for prosecution of violations of the anti-trust laws from being used to prosecute labor and farmers' organizations for acts committed in furtherance of the legitimate functions.

7. The enactment of the seamen's law giving sailors the right to leave their employment when their vessel is in a safe port if the wages and working conditions are not satisfactory to them.

8. Creation of a permanent mediation board to use the good offices of the government in promoting adjustments of labor disputes on railroads.

9. The establishment of an eight-hour law for women and child-workers in the District of Columbia.

10. An eight-hour law for employees engaged in operations under Alaskan coal land act.

11. Construction of the Alaskan railroad by the government instead of through contractors.

12. The agricultural extension act and appropriations thereunder, providing vocational education for farmers and residents in rural communities.

13. Masters, mates and pilots on vessels guaranteed the right to quit when conditions are not satisfactory to them.

14. Seven new safety stations and ten new experiment stations provided for the Bureau of Mines to enable it to extend its work of labor safety.

15. An investigation into the great industrial dispute in the coal-fields of West Virginia by a committee of the Senate whereby peace was restored.

16. Federal boiler inspection extended so as to apply to locomotive engines and tenders.

17. A committee of the House of Representatives made an investigation of the conditions existing in the Colorado coal-fields and the Michigan copper region during the big strikes in those states.

18. Imposition of an income tax in conformity with the provisions of the recently adopted constitutional amendment placing the burden of taxation upon the shoulders of those best able to bear it.

19. The establishment of a minimum fine for the enforcement of the hours of service act of 1907, applying to railway employees, which had become practically inoperative because the law provided a maximum fine but no minimum for those who were convicted of its violation.

20. Enactment of a comprehensive child labor law to govern all interstate commerce.

21. Eight hour law for railway trainmen.

In addition to the measures enumerated above enacted into law by the two Congresses during this Administration which have been the busiest in history, preparations have been made for the enactment of further legislation at an early day. The bill to create a Bureau of Labor Safety and the Government Employees' Compensation Bill have passed the House and have been reported to the Senate. The Convict Labor Bill, to enable states to regulate admission from another state of convict-made goods, has been reported favorably by the House Committee on Labor and also by the Senate Committee on Education and Labor, and is now on the calendar of both Houses. A bill to provide federal aid for vocational training has been reported favorably by the House Committee on Education and the Senate Committee on Education and Labor. A bill to provide increased wages for federal inspectors of locomotives and railway equipment is on the House calendar with a favorable report from the House committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce. A bill to create a National Employment Bureau has been favorably acted upon by the House Committee on Labor and is now before the House for its consideration.

A bill for the promotion of safety of employees and travelers on railroads, providing a greater distance of clearance between cars and obstructions along the right-of-way, has been placed upon the calendar of the House with the endorsement of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Roup are well known among the arms workers in the Remington factories here, and as men of them desire to attend the obsequies it has been arranged to have the funeral services at 11:30 next Monday. Rev. James Scovill will officiate, and interment will be made in the Lakeview cemetery.

THE G. O. P. ELEPHANT.

The first use of the elephant as a pictorial symbol of the Republican party was in 1874, when Thomas Nast, the first of the celebrated political cartoonists of America, made the "ponderous pachyderm" the G. O. P. emblem. Nast was born in Bavaria seventy-six years ago today, and came to America at the age of six. His first employment as an artist was on the staff of Frank Leslie's Illustrated Newspaper. In the early '60s he went to Italy and was with Garibaldi as an artist for British and American papers. As political cartoonist for Harper's Weekly he achieved an international reputation, and his cartoons were said to have been largely responsible for the downfall of the Tweed-ring in New York. In 1874 Nast drew a cartoon representing an elephant, labelled "Republican Party," about to fall into a chasm, tagged the "Southern Claims Chaos." Nast also depicted the Democratic party as a fox, but later the donkey was substituted by cartoonists of opposite political faith and has been cheerfully accepted by the Democrats. Nast died in Ecuador in 1902.
